

As a consumer, I wanted to express my concern on the above proceeding. I feel that delaying number portability concerning wireless companies is anti-competitive and bad for the consumer. If wireless companies are forced to give up their numbers, they will have to have better customer service, better prices and better overall operations to keep consumers. This has already been delayed twice because of pressures within the industry. Please do not delay this yet again. It is bad business and it is bad for all consumers!!!
